PITCHING DOPE, PARAMOUNT AS SERIES LOOMS, FAVORS THE YANKEES

DEFEAT FOR BUSH

Old Slugger Believes Mays's Style More Dangerous Against Giants.

In fact, nearly all of the oldtimerativer the Giants, and no doubt senti-ent figures strongly in their calcula-ons. They regard John McGraw as the tions. They regard John McGraw as the greatest manager who ever sent out a signal, and it is largely because of their high estimate of "Mac's" ability that they are inclined toward the National Leaguers. As Derby Bill Clymer put it at the Polo Grounds the other day: "No matter how the situation may favor the other fellows, no world series is worse than an even proposition for a club managed by McGraw with the breaks deciding. The breaks are the things."

To return to Brouthers—he declares he has seen smarter ball clubs than the one the Giants will pit against the Yankees next Wednesday, but adds that he has seen few aggregations which can managed by McGraw with the breaks deciding. The breaks are the things.

To return to Brouthers—he decidere he has seen smarter ball clubs than the one the Clurate will pit against the Yaraban his ass do the New Yorks and do their hitting in the face of odds and handicaps.

Thinks Mays Big Threat.

"I think that of all the Yarkee pitchere for the Ginns will make the most trouble for the Ginns and McGraw's cub last fall. As for Shawkey, the boys tell me they have his simumber and don't care how often they stated the state of the series and New Yorks and the series of the series and New Yorks and the series of the series and New Yorks and the series of the series and New Yorks and the Shaws the series of the series and New Yorks and the Shaws the series of the series and New Yorks and the Shaws the series of the series and New Yorks and the Shaws the series of the series and New Yorks and the Shaws the Shaws the series of the series and New Yorks and the Shaws t Graw's never is licked."

Roger Hornsby of the Cardinals, leading hitter of his league, also is inclined toward the Giants. When asked on Tuesday what he thought of the chances of the National League champions Hornsby declared, "I think the Giants have the edge. They have a great ball club—hard hitters and fast men. They have a wonderful defensive team and their pitching will do. I think Nehf and Barnes can turn the trick. However, while I regard McQuillan as a good pitcher, I do not think he can win in the series. He is too excitable."

Hornsby Saw Different Yanks.

Hornsby no doubt got his impressions of the Yankees in their series with the Cardinals in New Orleans last spring, in which Miller Huggins's club-did not look so well. Since then the Yankees have undergone a reconstruction; have gained tremendous strencth through the placing of Dugan at third and Witt in center field, with Elmer Smith to call on the a clinch. The Yankees as they stand the Willey as the first gain to have the fifty-ninth street, in honor of Albert H. Nixon, who has recently assumed the author.

Pitching always holds a major place in world series talk—but never was it is now. It has been stated by some that McGraw won his remant this year with the weakest nitching staff which yet has taken a flag in the major league. "Mac" himself will dispute that. He holds that his jugging act may have made the staff look vorse than it really is—and that his slingers may spring a big surprise. However, the fan in the stands and the man in the street bow low to the pitching fetich—and no wonder, when it takes only four out of seven to win the cittle. Pitching has a tremendous value in the classic, and the Yankees the citle. Pitching has a tremendous value in the classie, and the Yankees cirtainly have the pitchers. Here is how the two staffs shape up just now:

There are some who, like Brouthers, held that Bush's fast ball will be easy for the Glants—that McGraw's men knecked out Dazzy Vance of the Dodgers, a right hander aloug the Bush order, every time they faced him. That's interesting, but the parallel does not hold good. Bush has a change of pace. It remains to be seen if Bush's change will do him any good against hitters who thrive on fast ball pitching.

Bush beat the Glants in 1912, when the Athletics took the McGraw clan for four out of five. The Glants of 1922 are a far different ball club, particularly in hitting style, than were the McGrawmen of 1913. After the Phillies had beaten a fairly regular team of Giants in the tenth in-ning of the first game at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon, 5 to 3 Grounds yesterday atternoon, 5 to 5, Jimmy Ring went out against John Mc-Graw's rookies in the second contest and laughed himself into a knot. For seven innings Jimmy had the kids stand-ing on their ears trying to connect with Arthur Decatur pitched the first six in mings for Brooklyn, and the Braves slugged him for six hits and three runs in six innings. One of the hits was in six innings. One of the hits was the fourth inning, with Beckelo in first. Harry Shriver pitched the seventh and eighth and allowed one hit. It came in the lighth inning, and with errors and other things helped the Braves to score four runs in that session.

The defeat to-day gave the Dodgers an even break in the series of two games, and made their record with the Braves this year fifteen won by the Dodgers and seven won by the Braves. The Dodgers are playing an exhibition in Rockville, Coun, to-morrow, and close their season by meeting the Phillies at Ebbets Field in single games on Saturday and Sunday. To-day's game was the Braves' last at home and attracted less than 509 (ans.)

The opening game, which was broken up by a home run into the right field stand by Wrightstone in the tenth, served to introduce Fred Johnson, a young right hander from San Antonio of the Texas League. While Johnson fost a hot argument with Lefty Weinert the New York recruit showed enough to warrant the belief that he will make his mark. He had a good burst of speed and threw a ball with a hook and a hop to it.

THE LISTENING POST

Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD.

A NEW SCHEDULE.

When Battling Siki, the Senegalese swatter, clouted Carpentier he did more than muss up the features of Gorgeous Georges. He disarranged the whole schedule. It was Jack Dempsey who was supposed to knock Carpentier for a goal and this was to occur later in the season. Siki was to be merely practice material. Georges laughed at the idea of any danger to be encountered in the bout. Well, there once was an Irishman named Mike, who was stirred to great mirth as he thought how funny it would be to wave a red rag at a bull. Afterward he said that he was glad he had had his laugh first.

But, to get back to the real subject in hand; the entire schedule now has to be redrafted. The committee must work overtime. And the new arrangement will take some planning. If the promoters immediately match Siki against Dempsey or Wills they may lose a very new and valuable asset. Also, while Harry Greb couldn't hurt him, he might make him look extremely foolish. On the other hand, if they match Siki against some lesser light and get him trimmed his value as a tremendous asset will be gone forever. It may be possible, therefore, that they will persuade his manager to shoot the works and take on the best first. And another reason why this may be so is that from the price he is asking for his services Siki apparently desires to get enough out of one fight to purchase Senegal outright and erect a palace on the site of his boyhood home.

Siki may be quite a fighter. He has some undeniable qualifications. An opponent is confined to fighting him between the belt and neck. If he hits him above the collar button the only result is a broken hand. And if

THE GIANTS.

The Giants speeded up a little this season. Last year they didn't clinch their hold on the flag until September 29. McGraw has again proved himself a great manager. For the eighth time he has led a team to the championblan emitted two "rahs" and a "tiger."
Shinners doubled to right and Higbie stopped at third. Parkinson made a great play on King's bad bounder and nipped Higbie at the plate, Shinners reaching third. Cunningham shot a nasty one at Lessle, who fumbled just long enough to let Shinners come in with the winning run.

ship of the National League and this team took some index of hitting and fielding strength it requires skill to get by with a pitching staff as uncertain as April weather. And McGraw will bring that some craft to the world series.

Pitching is such a large part of a comparatively short series that if McGraw can pillet the Giants safely past that magnificent hurling staff of the Yankees he will deserve unlimited credit. But a hard hitting, fighting, well directed team is always an even bet. what you may have in the way of hitting and fielding strength it requires at the "four corners," but

One thing about the coming series is that it will be a battle of veterans. Practically all of the players have been under fire before.
